Mr. Bill Donnley
Deputy Director for Administration
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, DC 20505

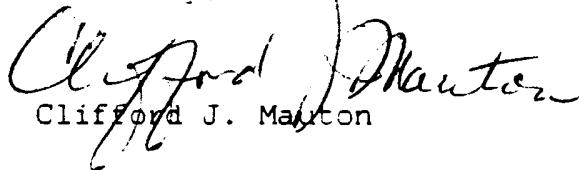

Dear Mr. Donnley,

I realize that, because of the current scope of your duties, you no longer have as much time to devote to detailed issues of computer technology as you did in the past. However, I understand that computer products and their capabilities are still very much of interest to you. Therefore, I wanted to provide you with a copy of the edition of "COMPUTERWORLD" which was devoted to DIGITAL Equipment Corporation products.

In addition to sending a copy to you, I have also sent a copy to Ed Maloney. I believe DIGITAL's existing and planned products may provide solutions for some of the architecture planning problems faced by OIT personnel.

Even if you only have time for a cursory scan, I believe you will find the enclosed copy interesting. The scope and spectrum of products and services offered by DIGITAL Equipment Corporation, and the ability to intercommunicate between systems, continues to grow. That growth is directly responsible for the continuing success of the Corporation.

Sincerely,

Clifford J. Manton
